1 Introduction

This assessment falls under the category of AI-Assisted in the University's Guidance on use of GenAI in Assessments [1].

You must produce an 8-page report covering the preliminary research you have done to prepare yourself for undertaking your project, together with an initial specification for the project itself.

"Research" here means reading, analysing and comparing existing material that is relevant to your project topic, and providing a reasoned summary of your findings.

The kind of material you consult will depend on the nature of your topic. Typically, your project will involve both an external subject area and various computational methods or resources that you will apply to that area (e.g., if you are devising a system for handwriting recognition, you will need to research how humans read and write as well as the computational pattern recognition or image processing tools you will be using). The sources you use may include books, journals, conference papers, web pages, and existing software. All of these will need to be referenced in a correct and consistent style, with the references collected together in bibliography at the end of the document.

The project aims, objectives and deliverables should be defined explicitly. You should provide clear criteria for evaluating the final product and results, i.e., what will count as a successful outcome for your project.

Your submission must comprise three parts, as follows:

1. A separate title page containing your name, a 100-200 word abstract.
2. The body, which must be no more than 8-page (i.e., 8 sides of A4) and presented with 11pt font with margins of 2cm (single column, single line spacing). A 5-mark deduction will be applied for each page by which the length of the document (excluding the title page and references) exceeds 8 pages.
3. The bibliography, also in a font not less than 11 pt. It is expected that this section will take up at least half a side of A4, and is not likely to exceed three sides.

You must submit your work to ELE2 by the submission deadline provided on the cover of this document.

2 Use of AI tools in AI-Assisted Assessments

For AI-Assisted assessments, you may use GenAI tools if you choose to do so. This is because using AI tools in specific ways can assist with your learning and will not inhibit fair assessment of your achievement of the module's intended learning outcomes [2].

This means: You may use GenAI tools ethically and responsibly in accordance with the purposes in the checked boxes in your assessment brief.

When writing your assessment, you must never use AI tools:

1. For uses other than those represented by checked boxes in your assessment brief.
2. To translate more than a word or short phrase into English unless agreed in the checked boxes in your assessment brief.
3. To upload sensitive or identifying material to an AI tool.
4. To present material that has been generated by AI as your own work or the work of someone else.

When submitting your assessment, you must:

1. Check the box during the submission process, that confirms you have adhered to the university's academic conduct policy and the expectations on use of GenAI in your assessment brief.
2. Treat the AI tool like a citation from any other source.
3. Include a list of all AI prompts and, where possible, hyperlinks to their output with your references, at the end of your work. You do not need to include the outputs themselves, just the links.
4. Retain the full outputs generated by the prompts you have used during your assignment for your records. These outputs should be accessible through the hyperlinks which you have submitted with your assignment. If hyperlinks are not produced through the tools you use, save the AI-generated output in a document that you can easily access later (e.g. on OneDrive). You may be asked to produce this material in the event of an academic conduct inquiry.

Here is a template [3] that you may use to record your AI use when completing AI-integrated and AI-assisted assignments. You can also create your own document to record AI use if you prefer.

2.1 How to reference GenAI using a specific referencing style

Find your referencing style and follow the links to Cite Them Right (CTR) [4]. Once you are on the Cite Them Right homepage for your referencing style, go to the 'Digital and Internet' tab. You should see a link for Generative AI. Sometimes this is listed under 'Software'. If your department is using a referencing style that is not included in Cite them right, you should visit the guidance for your style and ask your module convenor for further advice.
